

“The potential possibilities of every child are the most intriguing and stimulating in all creation”.
- Ray L Wilbur

Dear Parents,

We hope the autumn break was enjoyable and relaxing for the children.

The month of October was a short but exciting one! It saw children enjoying their each and every moment in preparation for Art Day! The children also enjoyed going out on field trips, away from the school environment, to have experiences outside their everyday activities. They made first hand observations of things in their natural state. It showed them how the knowledge they learn in school is actually applied in real world situations. It was a good way to teach and a chance to learn hands-on activities. Education without excitement only inspires boredom.

Indus Junior School offers experiences that are geared to the development of every aspect of the child's development. Their basic requirements and developmental needs are the main consideration whilst conducting activities. It is a holistic approach to develop the 'whole child' and not just his mental or intellectual aspect. The main endeavor is to encourage each child to participate, experience and grow in every area.

Art Day

Creativity in play and curiosity in the early childhood years is the greatest gift that we can give our children. Opportunities for creativity are provided at Indus Junior School by encouraging children to create art pieces that promote imagination by allowing them to explore and discover. Art Day was a day when the children, along with their teachers, put together the various pieces of artwork they had created with their peer group. The theme of Art Day this time was 'Love thy Nature'. It was indeed a pleasure to see the whole school come together and display an immense sense of teamwork. That day, children also made wonderful greeting cards and decorated earthen diyas with paints and colourful sequins.

Upcoming Events - November:

14 November : Children's Day celebrations

17 - 19 November : Grade-wise 'End of Unit' Celebrations

28 November : Show and Tell competition

Looking forward to yet another exciting month ahead!

Warm Regards,
